JONATHAN AND DAVID: A NOBLE FRIENDSHIP

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 18:1-4; 20: 14-17, 32, 34, 41, 42; II Samuel 1:17-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—A man that hath friends must show himself friendly and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two True Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—David and Jonathan, Friends.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Worthy Friends.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Friend Who Does Not Fail.

The friendship of David and Jonathan has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan was the crown prince, heir to the throne according to hereditary rights. David was heir by divine choice and arrangement. Jonathan knew this and magnanimously waived his natural personal rights in favor of the one he knew God had chosen.

I. Friendship Established Between David and Jonathan (I Sam. 18:1-4).

1. Love at sight (vv. 1, 2).

Following the interview of Saul and David, after the victory over Goliath, Jonathan's soul was knit with that of David. He loved David as his own soul. While there was mutual love, this pleasing trait stands out more prominently in Jonathan than in David.

2. A covenant established (vv. 3, 4).

The bringing of David into Saul's home gave opportunity for expression of love between Jonathan and David. This love resulted in the establishment of a covenant between them. Following this love covenant, Jonathan stripped himself of his court robe and his equipment and gave them to David. This act was a virtual abdication of the throne to David.

II. Jonathan Defended David Against Saul's Frenzy (I Sam. 19:1-7).

David went into the battle with God Hath out of zeal for God and true religion, not for personal glory, but it turned out as always, that because he put God first, God honored him. On David's return from victory over the Philistines, according to oriental custom, he was met by a triumphal chorus of women of all the cities of Israel, chanting praises to him for his victory over their enemy. They ascribed more praise and honor to David than to Saul. To hear sung the praises of a shepherd boy as surpassing his own was too much for Saul. It aroused murderous envy which had been slumbering in his heart and moved him to attempt twice to kill David. This is not an imaginary sin its counterpart may be found in many of our own hearts. The only cure for this dreadful evil is to put God first —to think more of him and our duty to him than our reputation before men. In Saul's third attempt to kill David, Jonathan defended him before his father, from whom he secured the oath that David should not be slain.

III. Jonathan Revealed to David Saul's Murderous Attempt (I Sam 20:30-40).

The beginning of the new moon was celebrated by sacrifices and feasting, at which all the members of the family were expected to be present (v. 5) David's excuse for being absent was that he might go home to attend the yearly sacrifice of his family. The annual feast was more important than the monthly feast. Matters were now so serious that Jonathan and David renewed the covenant between them In this renewal the terms were broadened beyond the life of Jonathan (vv. 14, 15). Saul's anger was now so fierce that for Jonathan to be found in David's company was most dangerous, so he cleverly planned a sign by which he could make known to David Saul's attitude and purpose. True friendship is proven in warning those who are exposed to danger.

Concerning friendships, observe:

1. It should be made while both parties are young. This is the time when hearts are capable of being knit together.

2. Real friends are few. Great care should be exercised in the formation of friendships, for while loving everybody, it is possible to have only a few friends.

3. Both parties must be God-fearing. David and Jonathan both recognized their obligation to the Lord, and that his help was essential to the welfare of both.

IV. David Mourns for Jonathan (II Sam. 1:17-27).

When David learned of Jonathan's death he sincerely mourned, remembering his undying loyalty and his personal worth.

Love Is the Conqueror

Love alone in this world is the conqueror; by love alone can the nations of the world be brought into the paths of peace; to pursue and to attain love is to pursue the one thing needful to attain the only thing in the world.—Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin.

California Town Bars Noisy Barnyard Colony

Burlingame, Calif. — The blatant crow of the rooster, the gabbling of geese and the coo of the pigeon have been officially muted by Burlingame's city fathers.

In solemn conclave, the city council enacted an ordinance muting the vocal utterances of fowls and other barnyard residents, curtailing their number and restricting their surroundings. Owners who permit their charges to moo, bleat, crow, cackle, warble or snort where such noise disturbs neighbors in their sleep or otherwise, are punishable by a fine of $500 and six months in jail.

1675 CHURCH BELL CLOSELY GUARDED

Story Is That It Was Given by Grateful Widow.

Hyannis, Mass.—Carefully guarded in the fireproof courthouse of Barnstable county, in Barnstable, stands what is believed to be the oldest church bell in the country. It is oxydized a bright green, but plainly legible is the date of casting, 1675, along with the Latin inscription, "Si Deus pro nobis quis contra nos sit."

The bell is hardly larger than those used on locomotives today, but its history is nearly as long as that of the state of Massachusetts.

The story handed down by word of mouth is that in 1674 a ship commanded by Capt. Peter Rudolff was lost off Sandwich and all hands drowned. The people of Barnstable gave the bodies cast up on shore a Christian burial. The next year the captain's widow sent the bell to Barnstable in appreciation of the colonists' kindness.

First it was used as a church bell and then transferred to the courthouse. From there it announced the stirring events of the revolution from the battle of Lexington onward and retained its place until the building burned in 1858. The belfry fell onward so the bell was saved and was hung in the present courthouse when it was built.

Early in the present century some boys who were "ringing in" the Fourth of July rather overdid the business and the bell was cracked. It then was placed in the law library for permanent preservation.

Ancient Beast's Bones Discovered in South

Richmond, Va.—The teeth and jaw bones and particles of other bones of some prehistoric monster which either swam in the ocean off Wilmington, N. C., or roamed the forest, were found by dredging officials in a section of the intracoastal waterway between Carolina Beach and Myrtle Grove Sound.

The teeth, several of which were dug out of the earth, were approximately nine inches long and about three and a half inches in diameter. They weighed several pounds each, one of the jaw teeth had a spread of about 12 inches, was eight inches long and had a thickness of about four inches.

Particles of the bone found were of a massive nature and indicated that the beast was extremely powerful and capable of accomplishing much destruction with its iron jaws and vicelike teeth.

Shifting Sand Reveals Lost City in Arizona

Phoenix, Ariz.—Cibola, "City of Jewels," sought four centuries ago by Spanish conquistadores when they learned from Indian legends of its ancient splendor, is believed to have been found here recently, when sands of the Arizona desert near Palomas shifted and revealed ruins of a lost city.

The discovery was made by W. J. Hanna, federal land inspector, who claims to have found evidence of prehistoric civilization along an ancient water course.

Much pottery and remains of an ingenious irrigation system were uncovered, he said.

Excavation is planned in the fall.

Back Quit Hurting

"I was in a very weak condition from a serious case of sickness," writes Mrs. J. Leonard, 571 Joseph St., New Orleans, La. "I was so weak, I wanted to sleep all the time, and did not have strength to do anything. My back ached nearly all the time. I knew I needed

"My mother told me I must arouse myself from the sleepiness, and take something to help get my strength back. She had taken Cardui and had been helped, so I decided to take Cardui, too. After my first bottle, I could see that it was helping me. I took four bottles at this time. My strength came back and I gained weight. Pretty soon, I was my old self again.

"My back quit hurting, and I haven't had any more trouble since I took Cardui."

75,000 MILES IN A MODEL A FORD

Letter from salesman shows reliability and economy of the car

IN THE past two years, many new Fords have been driven 50,000, 75,000 and even 100,000 miles. Everywhere the car has made an unusual record for reliability and economy. Following is a letter — one among many received — from a salesman who travels long distances daily by automobile.

"I purchased a Model A Coupe May 8, 1928, and at this writing have run it 75,888 miles.

"After I had driven 44,400 miles, I spent $45.08 in repairs and at 61,000 miles had an additional amount of work done costing $25.60. My tire mileage has averaged better than 18,000 miles.

"I am a traveling man and my territory is from northern Virginia to Macon, Mississippi, and from Knoxville, Tennessee, to the Atlantic Ocean."

Similar tributes to the new Ford come to us daily from individual owners, from Federal and City Bureaus and from large industrial companies having fleets of several hundred cars.

They have found, as you will find, that the low cost of operation and up-keep on the Ford is even more important than the low first cost of the car. In twenty, thirty, or fifty thousand miles, this saving frequently amounts to hundreds of dollars. The quality that has been built into the car is reflected in its good performance and long life.

See the Ford dealer and have him take you for a demonstration ride in the new Ford. Give the car a severe test in traffic, on steep hills and on the open road. Check up on comfort, safety, speed, power, acceleration. Talk with Ford owners and experienced garage men and note what they say about reliability and economy.

Then you will know, from your own experience, that the new Ford brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.
